

Does your processing solution speak the right language?

Trustpoint.One

Trustpoint.One, an eDiscovery solutions provider, had a Global 500 client who needed to retrieve and review millions of documents around the world as part of its defense in an investigation examining whether it violated the U.S. Foreign Corrupt Practices Act (FCPA).

- Phil Shelhaas, executive vice president, Trustpoint.One

Trustpoint.One was tasked with preparing and reviewing several hundred thousand — and sometimes a million — documents in multiple foreign languages, including unique dialects, from each of the company’s several dozen subsidiaries.

“ Mindseye did exactly what we needed it to do to process all this data and conduct early case assessment that set us down the right path in review.

- Phil Shelhaas

Trustpoint.One was able to process all of the documents quickly regardless of language and dialect. In one instance, it processed more than a million documents that encompassed four languages.

Can your system do that?

Whether you are a law firm or a corporate legal department, if your processing system can’t easily handle multiple languages, then you can’t effectively support global cases. Interested in seeing for yourself how you can support processing on a global scale? Contact Mindseye at (888) 770-3876 or sales@mindseyesolutions.com for a demo.

“ Mindseye’s processing and ECA capabilities helped us refine our keyword strategies and get the appropriate search results. It provided us with the workflow we needed so we could move into review.
